Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

"I don't mind this weather for myself but I hate it for my Martins." . . . so said Frank Thornton as he sat in Charles Bryant's Restaurant eating his breakfast bacon and eggs and looked out at the swirling April snowstorm. . . that was something of a surprise, . . . because somehow I just never thought of the co-proprietor of The Club as a nature lover. . . but that was only the beginning. . .

William (Bill) Turner, the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. trouble shooter, sitting on the stool on the other side of me, chimed in with a "well I've been watchin' them sitting around with their feathers turned inside out in my yard tryin' to keep warm". . . then he mused, "Y' know, I think I'll put my Martin houses back up again". . . whereupon Charlie chuckled, "my wife and the neighbors finally made me take mine down too, Bill," he said. . . that all led to a discussion as serious as if they had been putting over a big business deal.

Bill said one of his Martin houses had 28 rooms in it. . . "and they were all full," he boasted. . . Charlie laughed again and said his were filled too and that was the reason he no longer had them. . . Frank said his Martins had been coming in from the south regularly on March 27, 28 and 29 for years. . . but this year, he added, they would experience a housing shortage "because Ralph Taylor's birds that always had come in on March 28, 24 and 25 beat them to it". Ralph had his houses down painting them when his birds arrived, Frank said, and they moved into the vacant houses. . . Bill and Frank agreed that one of Bill's Martins had been living in Frank's houses for the past several years. . . they identified him by some white feathers in his left wing. . . when I was leaving, Charlie and Bill were trying to figure out how to overcome the opposition and get their Martin boxes back up. . . no sir, you never can tell about people, can you?

I saw two huge truck loads of red picket fencing roll up Fayette Street from Route 35, Tuesday afternoon, and was reminded that it has been years since I have seen such fence being moved, and then not in large quantities like the present shipment.

The trucks continued northwestward out of this city, I was informed.

This is the same kind of picket fencing that was formerly made at two or three small plants in Fayette County, and one of these for years was operated on a farm a mile north of Bloomingburg, on Route 38, but it, as well as other plants, went out of operation with the advent of wire fences, the first of which were built in Fayette County nearly 50 years ago.

This same type of picket fencing, held together with three or four strands of wire twisted between the pickets, is used in great quantities as a snow-break on the western plains, and the great stretches of plains in Alberta and Saskatchewan, Canada, where I have seen scores of miles of the picket fence along the railroads.

I am still wondering where the fencing is to be used that passed through here, and also where it was made.

GIRLS GET ANSWER FROM FIGHTIN' MEN

Praise Comes After They Put Names on Equipment

PATTERSON FIELD, April 6.—(AP)—In a tribute to "you people of the home front on the fine job you are doing," two GIs in Italy say "victory is possible only through the combined efforts of you, on the home front, and us on the fighting fronts."

The GI promise of victory arrived here in a letter addressed to eight Zanesville girls who work in a specialized depot of the supply section of the Air Service Command. The soldiers wrote in appreciation of "tools which are already at work on the airplanes which are giving the enemy no rest."

Airplane mechanics, the two men are Pvt. Vincent Grandinetti of Long Island, and Cpl. Alfred White of Massachusetts. They found the names of the girls on the inspection slips enclosed with supplies.

THREE KILLED IN BIG BLAST AT NAVAL DEPOT

Area Within 50-mile Radius Rocked by Explosion at Hastings, Neb.

HASTINGS, Neb., April 6.—(AP)—An explosion at the Hastings naval ammunition depot early today that occurred in a railroad box car and followed by another blast in a shed filled with mines and depth charges killed three persons and five others missing are "presumed to be dead," Capt. D. F. Patterson, commanding officer at the depot, said.

Three employees who were in the concrete "cooling" shed survived the blast, but their condition is critical.

In addition 35 people sustained injuries described as minor. Damage was estimated at $50,000, Capt. Patterson said. All the dead and injured were civilian depot employees living near here.

The three killed were Norris Frey, Chester Curtis and Lydia Mitchell. Missing are Mary McQuaid, Vera Connant, Laverne Hopkins, Lois Adams and Keith Mathensain. Three critically hurt were George Armstrong, Mable Wise and Leona Tassieux, who were in the shed.

The explosion shattered windows in about 20 stores in Hastings, an estimated 10½ miles from the explosion scene. Glenvil, small village on the outskirts of the plant, was hard hit, with business houses there "practically collapsed," Marshal Wert Bruns said. There was no loss of life or serious injury to village residents.

Capt. Patterson, who said the cause of the blast was unknown, gave this report:

"This explosion occurred at 1:20 A. M., first in a railroad box car that was on a siding beside a cooling shed for bombs and mines. This box car was being loaded.

"After the explosion of the box car the cooling shed exploded. It was filled with mines and depth charges. The cooling shed, about 100 by 100 feet, is built of concrete, heavily barricaded. Three people in the shed survived, but they are quite badly hurt."

Lt. (JG) Charles F. Foster, officer in charge of the bomb and mine filling area, said he was looking out of a window at the time and saw the box car explode, followed by the cooling shed.

Capt. Patterson said a court of inquiry has been ordered by the commandant of the Ninth Naval District.

The blast rocked an area within a 50-mile radius of the depot. In Hastings, about 14 miles northwest of the plant, the explosion shook houses and broke windows in many buildings, said Mayor Roy Carter.

Ambulances were dispatched to the depot and all roads between the plant and Hastings were ordered kept open.

Naval officials in Washington said the explosion was confined to one unit of the plant, the largest in Nebraska, embracing 48,000 acres.

"The entire sky was lighted up—it was like an earthquake," said Ellis Price, a taxicab driver.

Mayor Carter said windows in several business establishments in the downtown district were broken and that houses throughout the city of 18,000 were shaken off by the explosion.

Yank News Boys Of Air Bomb Nazis With Truth

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, England, April 6.—(AP)—American airforce "newsboys" are dropping leaflets and newspapers over occupied Europe and Germany at a rate of sometimes approaching 2,500,000 copies daily to carry to their "customers" the truth about the war.

This huge load of paper "bombs" is toted by a group of Flying Fortresses which have been operating anonymously for many weeks. So far, the small outfit at this one bomber base has been on 77 missions without a loss.

Yanks Killing Japs As Enemy Batters On Indian Frontier

(By The Associated Press) Allied Troops continued to kill and wound Japanese in India, but the enemy is still exerting pressure along the Assam front north of Imphal, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters reported today.

The British radio said today that troops of the 17th Indian division had fought their way through the Japanese and reached Imphal after 21 days of action in which 1,800 enemy casualties were inflicted.

The report said part of the action was along ten miles of the Imphal-Tiddim highway. Two weeks ago, the Japanese asserted they had cut the division to pieces. Actually, the British raid said, the division reached Imphal with a

OFFICIAL ACCUSED AT WRIGHT PLANT

Technician Says He Passed Faulty Metal Bars

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, April 6.—(AP)—A pretty young laboratory technician testified today that reports on tensile strength failures in aluminum bars being tested for use in airplane engine cylinder-heads were erased and changed in the office of an official of the Wright Aeronautical Corp.

The witness in the fourth day of a court martial of three Army Air Forces officers accused of neglect of duty and conspiracy in aircraft engine inspection at the plant was Mrs. Jeanne Miller.

"We took failures (bars which failed to test to specifications) to David Longueville, our supervisor in the laboratory in his office, and the reports came back erased and changed to passing," she told the eleven-man court.

Surrender of Tiddim to the Japanese was announced several days ago.

There were, however, three bright spots in the India-Burma picture. Mountbatten's headquar-

MISSING CAP PLANE IS HUNTED IN OHIO

Hope Held That It Landed in Isolated Area

DETROIT, April 6.—(AP)—An elaborate land, air and water search for a missing civil air patrol plane containing three men, fruitless in Michigan yesterday, was extended today to Ohio and Indiana.

Hope that the missing fliers may have made a safe forced landing in some remote spot revived with a belated report that their radio was heard by a listener in a control tower near Detroit as late as 8:40 P. M., Eastern War Time, Monday, the night they disappeared after taking off in a blinding snowstorm from Benton Harbor, Mich., for Detroit.

The radio message said the plane, unable to contact the Lansing, Mich., airport or to land at Detroit, was heading into Ohio with enough gasoline remaining for two hours of flight, or an estimated 300 miles.

The missing plane was a bright blue Beechcraft. It carried CAP Pilot Al Dillon of Benton Harbor, Mich., and Robert Burke and Richard Ford, both of Berrien Springs, Mich.

CLEVELAND CHINAMAN FACES FEDERAL CHARGE

CLEVELAND, April 6.—(AP)—Tong Y. Chin, head of a chain of local Chinese restaurants, and four employees were free on bond today after arrest by federal authorities on charges of conspiring to conceal and harbor Chinese seamen who illegally jumped ship.

All were named in a secret indictment returned last week by the federal grand jury and will be arraigned next week before Federal Judge Emerich B. Freed.

MINERS NOT EXEMPT

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes said today he had little hope that any coal miners under 26 will be deferred from the draft and forecast that it will mean more restrictions on the use of coal next winter.

CINCINNATI FACTORY IS SWEEPED BY FLAMES

Fire Threatens Section of Commission Houses

CINCINNATI, April 6.—(AP)—A spectacular five-alarm fire swept a five-story building occupied by the Acme Radiator Shield Co., Inc., and three other firms at 50 Vine Street in the Ohio River bottoms area today, causing loss placed by firemen at $100,000 to $150,000.

It was brought under control shortly after 8 A. M., after threatening nearby structures.

The blaze, in an area occupied largely by produce and commission houses, was detected shortly before 7 A. M., by William Click, bartender in a nearby cafe.

RELIEF FOR BALKANS ALL SET BY ALLIES

CAIRO, April 6.—(AP)—Plans are completed for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration to move into the Balkans with the Allied military forces, Herbert H. Lehman, head of the UNRRA, said today.

The purpose of his visit to Cairo, Lehman said, was to arrange for the UNRRA to absorb the Middle East Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and to discuss with military authorities plans for civilian relief in liberated Balkan countries.

CLEVELAND AND CHICAGO SHARE SAFETY HONORS

CHICAGO, April 6.—(AP)—Cleveland, Ohio, and Chicago, Illinois, tied for first place among cities over 500,000 population in the annual National Traffic Safety Contest, and Cincinnati, Ohio, won first place among cities in the 250,000-500,000 group, the National Safety Council announced last night.

Willkie Backs Out Of Presidency Race; Speculation Stirred

GOP Standard Bearer of 1940 Withdraws Unexpectedly After Wisconsin Setback

OMAHA, April 6.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican party's 1940 standard bearer and an indefatigable campaigner for the honor again this year, has withdrawn from the race, conceding he has no chance to win the party's 1944 presidential nomination.

In an abrupt and dramatic announcement at a rally in Omaha City Auditorium last night, Willkie, at the conclusion of his prepared speech on "foreign policy," told a crowd of 3,000 he was quitting as a candidate for the GOP nomination for president, asserting "it is obvious that I can not be nominated."

The unexpected statement, which Willkie described as "something quite personal—something perhaps of not much importance"—urged that his friends "desist from any activity" toward his nomination.

Failure in Wisconsin

His decision was attributed to his failure to win a single delegate Tuesday in the Wisconsin primary. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, although not a declared candidate, emerged with 15 delegates pledged outright and three claimed for him.

The crowd, apparently not immediately sensing the significance of the brief announcement, vigorously applauded Willkie.

As Willkie, smiling, shook hands with local political leaders, the crowd lingered, and there were puzzled expressions on the faces of many, obviously astonished at hearing Willkie declare he was stepping out from the quickening contest for the nation's highest political office.

Willkie left Omaha on a late train, enroute to New York. Until the end of his 50-minute prepared speech, devoted primarily to criticism of the ad-

OHIO LIQUOR STORES GET MORE BONUSES

Domestic Grog Unchanged on Ration Schedule

COLUMBUS, April 6.—(AP)—Imported gin and cordials were added to Ohio's list of unrationed spirits beginning with the next six-week ration period, April 10 to May 20, inclusive, State Liquor Director Don A. Fisher announced today.

Brandy and rum already are off the ration list, and the addition of cordials and imported gin leaves only whiskey and domestic gin rationed. Ration card holders may buy one quart, one fifth or two pints of whiskey or domestic gin during the next ration period.

Fisher also announced that the allocation to dealers of cordials and imported gin had been increased from 50 percent to their full quota based on the number of bottles obtained during the first half of 1942. This means, he explained, they may purchase the same amount of those spirits as obtained during that period.

The state obtained 159,000 more cases of all types of spirits during the first quarter of 1944 than in the corresponding 1943 period, Fisher said, a 21 percent increase.

Politicians Left Guessing by Sudden Campaign Shift; Bricker Surprised

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP)—A presidential nomination without strings floated enticingly close before Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York today as Wendell L. Willkie quit the Republican race after losing a long-shot gamble for Wisconsin delegates.

Dewey, who reached for the prize in Philadelphia in 1940 only to find Willkie had grabbed it, stood out as the leading possibility for the nomination in the wake of Willkie's dramatic bow out of a contest on which he had spent most of his efforts for the last four years.

Willkie failed to win a delegate in Wisconsin, where 15 pledged Dewey representatives were elected despite the New York governor's previous plea for them to withdraw. The 1940 nominee threw in the sponge with the announcement that it was obvious he could not be nominated after his decisive setback in Wisconsin.

Dewey Is Silent

Characteristically, Dewey busied himself at Albany with a stack of legislative bills and said nothing about his future plans—a silence some backers said he might maintain up to the time of the June nominating convention.

He said he is not a candidate—but never that he would not accept. While others thought the pressure for a statement to the effect that he would take a proffered nomination might become too great to withstand, intimates of the governor said he had made up his mind that if he is to be the standard bearer, he does not want to owe his selection to any individual or single element in the party, or to have any other strings attached.

With a minimum of 132 convention delegates pledged or claimed for him, as compared with 26 pledged to Lieut. Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen and three to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Dewey seemed well started toward such a goal. His other major opponent, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio has yet to show publicly in any of

MARKET TREND DATA WON'T BE GIVEN OPA

Cincinnati Association Head Says It Is "Trade Secret"

CINCINNATI, April 6.—(AP)—Cincinnati members of the National League of Wholesale Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Dealers "will not give the Office of Price Administration the information it asks about local market conditions," Harold Buzek, president of the organization, announced.

Buzek declared last night the league considers its information on market conditions "trade secrets."

Any refusal by league members to supply information will not interfere seriously with establishment of ceiling prices since the data can be obtained from other sources, an OPA official asserted.

SALARIES INCREASED

COLUMBUS, April 6.—(AP)—John C. Waidner, head of the state welfare department's business administration division, announced today salary increases ranging from 15 to 30 percent would be paid Cleveland state hospital employees by April 15.

CASSINO BATTLE FLARES UP WITH ARTILLERY DUEL

Allied Warplanes Support Soviet Drive Into Balkans By Blasting Oil Center

By RICHARD McMURRAY

(By The Associated Press) Russian troops pushed through the outlying suburbs of Odessa today within nine miles of the heart of the besieged Black Sea port, and the cacophony of battle already filled the ears of the estimated 200,000 Germans and Rumanians pinned down there.

The Third Ukrainian Army of Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky pressed in for the kill from three sides and Soviet bombers laid a barrage on sea and ferry escape channels.

U. S. Liberators today bombed the "invasion coast" of France, striking the Pas-de-Calais area for the second consecutive day under escort of Thunderbolt fighter planes.

Air headquarters said no aircraft were lost in the operation, which encountered only meager flak and no aerial opposition. A few hours earlier RAF bombers, flying for the first time in a week, returned from blasting German aircraft repair plants at Toulouse, France, less than 50 miles from Spain.

Some 165 miles behind the front in Rumania, American heavy bombers dealt Germany another staggering blow yesterday with an assault upon the rail yards and oil refineries of Ploesti. Massed tank cars were exploded, tracks were tipped, columns of black smoke swished three miles high.

Nazi Oil Center Hit

Germany obtains 6,000,000 tons of oil annually from Rumania, about a third of the Reich's requirements. With the great Ploesti fields imminently threatened by Russian armies and Allied bombs, the deputy commander of the Mediterranean air forces, Air Marshal Sir John Slessor, declared:

"The Germans could not possibly carry on without them. The bombers and their escorts destroyed more than 40 planes. A dozen heavy bombers were lost. Several dozen other Nazi planes were destroyed around and five aloft by U. S. Mustangs from Britain which shot up German airfields near Berlin and Munich and in France. Eight attackers were lost.

Battle of Cassino

Artillery exchanges re-echoed in the ruins of Cassino in central Italy. Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker disclosed some Allied troops were killed by poorly aimed bombs in the massive aerial reduction of Cassino March 15.

This disclosure by the commander of the Allied Mediterranean air forces came during a press conference in which he discussed many aspects of the bombing and declared that while the operation had failed to break German resistance it had "accomplished all that was expected of it by the air force commanders."

Eaker indicated his belief that

INSANE MAN CHOKES ROOMMATE TO DEATH

Inmate of Asylum Says Victim Laughed in Dream

Cuyahoga coroner S. R. Gerber reported today an inmate of Windsor Sanatorium in suburban Chagrin Falls was strangled to death by a roommate who dreamed the victim was laughing at him.

The victim was identified as Fred Ruzicka, 57, of Cleveland.

Although somewhat incoherent, the roommate was quoted by police as saying he dreamed Ruzicka was laughing at him because he was having his teeth pulled. When he awoke, he twisted a shirt around the victim's neck, holding it until Ruzicka died, police said he admitted.

The body was discovered by a hospital attendant.

NEW CATALOG OF STAMPS ADDED TO LIBRARY NOW

First General Volume of U. S. Envelopes Out Since 1911

Before tossing old envelopes to the scrap paper pile, you might study a book, recently added to the library's reference shelves, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, librarian, said.

The first general catalog of United States stamped envelopes issued since 1911 has just been edited and published by Prescott Holden Thorp and one of the limited number is now in the library. It gives a complete description with illustrations of various types of envelope stamps printed since 1853.

The highest priced stamps listed are: a three cent red on white paper issued in 1853 and a three cent 1876 Centennial Exposition Commemorative, printed in red instead of the customary green on white.

Many stamp collectors are interested in the yearly publications of Scotts, who buy and sell stamps as well as publishing their own catalog, Miss Johnson said. "There are not so many people who know or collect 'covers' as the stamped envelopes which have been mailed are called by philatelists," Miss Johnson commented.

POLITICIANS GUESSING AS WILLKIE WITHDRAWS; BRICKER IS SURPRISED the 276 convention delegate sections made.

Speculation Aroused

While Dewey was top man in the party as of today, the question of what Willkie might do held the interest of Republican politicians, who speculated on these possible developments:

1. Willkie might stump for a Republican with liberal international views such as Stassen, giving that candidate's chances a boost.

2. He might return to the Democratic party, which he quit before 1940—might even support a fourth term for President Roosevelt in preference to aiding a Republican who did not see eye to eye with him on foreign affairs.

3. He might head a new "bull moose" liberal movement.

4. Or, he might go along with the GOP nominee, whoever that may be, continuing his appeals for a "one world" program to preserve future peace.

Bricker Surprised

Gov. Bricker, in Columbus, expressed surprise last night as his most active opponent in the race for the Republican presidential nomination withdrew from the campaign.

"Wendell L. Willkie stimulated interest in the 1944 campaign by freely and courageously discussing his conception of the issues that are facing us in this very serious situation," the governor said. "His withdrawal comes as a surprise."

The governor's formal statement was issued through his office here, while he was meeting with party leaders in Pittsburgh.

"I have visited a number of states, in the east, in the south and in the west and I have found the people everywhere eager to hear a forthright discussion of the critical war and postwar problems," the statement added.

"I propose to continue my best efforts to let the public know my position in all respects."

Inevitable Says Taft

In Washington, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio said:

DP & L AWARDED CITATION FOR WAR PRODUCTION

Charles A. Coffin Citation Presented To Industry As a Whole

A framed citation from the Charles A. Coffin Foundation hangs in the office of the Dayton Power and Light Company today.

The citation was awarded the electric light and power industry as a whole "for the advancement of the electrical art." The Coffin Foundation, established by the General Electric Company "recognizes the distinguished wartime achievement of the electric light and power industry faced with unprecedented demands, the electric light and power industry has met every war-production requirement without delay and without impairment of its peace-time services to the public. This achievement merits the appreciation not only of American industry but also of the entire nation."

ministration's foreign policy, Willkie gave no intimation of his withdrawal announcement. His speech climaxed his five-day campaign of Nebraska, where he is entered in the presidential primary April 11.

What He Fought For

Addressing "fellow Americans," Willkie said his announcement "involves what I have been trying to do—what I have been fighting for."

He said it was his conviction "no Republican could be nominated for president unless he received at the convention the votes of some of the major mid-western states," where he said, the Republican party "has had its greatest resurgence."

Asserting "this country desperately needs new leadership," Willkie then announced his retirement from the race, adding:

"I earnestly hope that the Republican convention will nominate a candidate and write a platform which really represents the views which I have advocated and which I believe are shared by millions of Americans. I shall continue to work for these principles and policies for which I have fought during the last five years."

the outcome should not be construed as a reflection on the potentialities of aerial bombardment, declaring frankly that air power has its recognized limitations and it was not to be expected such an attack could wipe out all resistance.

Eaker emphasized his remarks should not be considered as a criticism of the ground forces or their commanders.

Eaker asserted the Cassino results confirmed earlier lessons which the air force had learned rather than teaching any new lesson.

A determined enemy, well dug in as at Cassino, can pretty well hold out against even the most terrific air attack, he said, adding that heavy bombers should be used to support ground forces only in certain emergencies, "such as at Salerno."

German Planets Bombed

British heavy bombers, taking to the air for the first time in a week, last night blasted German aircraft repair plants at Toulouse in southern France, less than 50 miles from the Spanish border, the Air Ministry announced today.

"The targets were clearly seen in the moonlight and first reports indicate that the bombing was effective," the announcement said.

The raid represented a round-trip flight of at least 1,000 miles. All but one of the big bombers returned, the Air Ministry said. Mines also were laid in enemy waters during the night.

The assault capped a day in which the American forces sent fighters against the Berlin and Munich areas and heavy bombers to Rumania's Ploesti oil field region in a two-way strike from bases in Britain and the Mediterranean.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Italy, fighting through heavy opposition, executed the Ploesti attack, hitting the region's rail yards rather than its oil equipment.

The raid provided direct support for the advancing Russian armies, whose spearheads are approximately 200 miles northeast of Ploesti. American bombers earlier this week hit Bucharest and Budapest.

A Berlin broadcast claimed 52 American bombers shot down over Ploesti. Allied headquarters in Naples did not say what losses were incurred.

Eight fighters of the U. S. Eighth Air Force failed to return from yesterday's operations over Germany but formations of Liberators which hit the Pas-de-Calais coast came back without a loss.

Fliers said tank cars filled with oil were set afire, tracks ripped by explosives, and smoke columns sent three miles into the air as the American bomber fleet and escort of fighters blasted strings of cars that gorged Ploesti's two freight yards.

British telephone lines to Ireland were closed to prevent spying.

The Russians at Odessa appeared to be massing for storming operations. To the northwest, capture of Baden placed the Soviets at the top of the trackless swamps which merge into the Dniester River estuary, forming a loose encirclement of the seventh largest Russian city.

The doomed Nazi garrison of Tarnopol in old Poland fought on. The Russians boiled down more of the survivors of 15 divisions trapped in the Skala "kettle." The capture of 30 settlements pushed Russian lines in Bessarabia within 24 miles of the capital, Kishinev.

British military commentators asserted Rumania's days as an effective fighting power were running out.

At Wewak, northeast New Guinea, Fifth Airforce bombers dumped 206 tons of bombs Tuesday, striking 13 Japanese planes on the ground and starting large fires, all without opposition.

Australians moving toward Madang, southeast down the coast, were last reported nine miles from Bogadjim.

In a day-long attack on well-purplized Rabaul, New Britain, 150 medium and light bombers let go with 110 tons of bombs on air-dromes and other installations.

Mitchell bombers of the 7th Army Air Force Monday gave Ponape, Japanese eastern Caroline outpost, its 27th bombing since Valentine's Day. Two navy search Liberators paid Wake a visit, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported, sinking a small cargo vessel. Four Twenty-five Japanese fighters, not seven as first reported, were shot down by American Liberators over Truk Sunday, it was disclosed.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

If Anthony Eden resigns the British foreign secretaryship to devote his whole time to government leadership in the House of Commons, as is reported to be scheduled, it will put squarely to the test his qualifications as possible successor to the great Churchill as prime minister.

That will be the significance of the move if it eventuates. Many British prophets feel Churchill's historic task of leading his people through the valley of "blood, toil, tears and sweat," from defeat to glorious victory, is drawing to a close. He and the chiefs of the conservative party are said to feel that the comparatively youthful Eden—he is 46—is the man to shoulder the burden, and they're going to put him through the mill to find out.

One important side-light is that if and when Eden takes the helm it will at long last bring the so-called "young conservatives" into power after decades of battling for a place in the sun. Churchill belongs to the old guard. So did a long string of predecessors.

Maybe it's wrong to call that a side-light. England, like the rest of the world, is on the verge of great changes, and coupled with those will be the post-war problems of reconstruction. It is a period when political adaptability and correct perspective will be at a premium.

So far as foreign affairs are concerned, there's no reason to anticipate any material change. The foreign minister doesn't lay down Britain's foreign policy. He may propose some of it, but the prime minister is the last word.

Many London observers think Lord Cranborne, secretary of state for dominion affairs, will become foreign secretary if Eden quits the post. Eden and Cranborne think alike on foreign policies.

Eden already is government leader in commons, but his foreign office duties require so much time that he hasn't been working very hard at his other job. Regular leadership in Commons would put him on a hot spot, where he would either make or break himself in short order. It's one of the toughest assignments in British politics.

It's an interesting commentary that Churchill, whom England has followed through hell and high water in the war emergency, is himself too much of an individualist to be a successful government leader in commons in normal times. He's by nature a lone wolf, and but for that fact could have been prime minister a score of years ago. His colleagues always admired his genius, but writhed under the caustic tongue with which he liked to lash them.

Eden should make a good leader. He inspires confidence, has a pleasing personality, and is possessed of considerable tact.

There's one other reason why Churchill requires strong leadership in commons. The house has been getting out of hand a bit of late—even his own conservative party—and has been challenging the old maestro.

Unusually Large Number of Vehicles Sold

During the month of March, 309 motor vehicle titles were issued at the clerk of court's office, the number being one of the greatest, if not the greatest, since war restrictions were imposed on the automobile industry.

During the month of February, 197 titles were issued.

Of the 309 issued in March, 37 were for used trucks and one for a new truck. No new automobiles were involved in the changes. Two motorcycles were included in the total.

COLLETT CASE APPEAL NOTICE NOT YET FILED

Time for Giving Notice Up Saturday and Appeal Is Expected

If the Collett first degree murder case is carried to a higher court, notice of appeal must be filed within 10 days from the time the entry overruling motion for a new trial was placed on record here and that was on March 29, the day that Collett was sentenced to die in the electric chair July 26.

Saturday is the last day for filing the notice of appeal and defense attorneys indicated that such notice would be filed with Prosecutor John B. Hill and the court here.

In the meantime little has been heard from the Clinton County killer since he was placed in the "death row" in the Ohio Penitentiary Friday of last week, after having been "processed" and found to be in very good physical condition.

It is expected that little will come out of "death row" directly from the condemned man.

POST OFFICE RECEIPTS UP

Big Gain in First Quarter of Year Noted

For the first three months this year receipts at the Washington C. H. Post Office increased $1,693.33 over the same time in the banner year of 1943.

Last year during the first quarter, receipts reached $14,476.52, compared with $16,169.85. Indications are that receipts for this year will exceed those of last year by several thousands of dollars.

It is expected that the sharp increase in many of the postal rates will also add materially to the total here.

Parents' Attitude
During a discussion the other day we heard a Fayette County man relate an incident which we think is worth repeating, regarding parental attitude toward children. This is always an interesting topic when talk drifts into causes and effects of juvenile delinquency.
This man related that he was standing on a street corner in Washington C. H. when he noticed a woman nearby with her small son by her side, talking to some friend. She looked over the head of her little son and was heard to remark, "I nearly go crazy on rainy days when he can't play out-of-doors. It's awful being cooped up with his noise and his questions."

The mother apparently failed to note the hurt look on the small boy's face, but the man who mentioned the incident saw it and declared he was really touched by the lad's bewildered and wounded expression. And it made him wonder, he said, if one of the reasons we are having so much juvenile delinquency in this country isn't because so many parents are rather thoughtless in treating their youngsters as nuisances instead of making them feel that they are a real and important part of the family who are as much to be considered and enjoyed as any other members.

The child whose parents admit in front of him that he "drives them crazy" is likely to grow up to be rebellious—and to feel he isn't really wanted anywhere.

And there is no way in the world to make kids want to stay at home, to make them value family life, except by making them feel that they are necessary and wanted.

But all too often today children are treated as nuisances by parents who don't like their noise, and by parents who would rather be out somewhere than at home with their children.

Mothers say in front of their young ones: "If I didn't have to stay at home and look after the children I'd be doing war work"—and they say it in such a way the children sense just what their mothers would prefer to be doing.

And then, very often, when the children get to be 14 or 15 years old and want to be anywhere except at home, the parents can't understand it.

Army Teachers
The army has sent out a call for civilian school teachers to replace men needed urgently for active military assignment. From three thousand to five thousand men and women will be required to take over the instruction of illiterates in uniform.
Our public schools as well as the army are short of manpower. The armed services have taken many men teachers, and large numbers of men and women have left teaching for better paying war jobs. If the army quota is met, it will add more difficulties to the present educational problem.
But the army's call cannot be ignored on that account. Illiterates, no matter how intelligent, cannot make first-rate soldiers in a war in which the scientists play so large a part. Furthermore, the army probably offers the last chance for the illiterate adult to gain education. Illiteracy being the social and economic millstone that it is, the country cannot afford to ignore this military opportunity to cure it.

You read a great deal, if today is your birthday, and enjoy good literature. You are a good talker but you are not interested in chitchat. You are quite domestic, but live very much within yourself. The next year will probably bring you inheritance or material aid from elderly relatives, accompanied, however, by sadness and perplexity. Deal cautiously with women, thus avoiding hostility. A good measure of fortune will be enjoyed by the child who is born on this date. He or she may not be very robust, however. The health will need care and attention.

Won't Always Work
In this world there is nothing more fleeting than a furlough. This has generally been known, but nothing much had been done about it until Pvt. Sidney Bletter of Milwaukee recently wired his commanding officer: "No death, no emergency. Request extension of furlough. Having wonderful time." It may have been his thought that honesty was the best policy, or he may have merely obeyed an impulse that seemed a bright idea at the time.

It remained only for Maj. George A. Lloyd, somewhat similarly motivated, to wire back: "Reward for honesty; extension of five days on present furlough granted." Major Lloyd apparently is a good sport with a sense of humor, the kind of person who can cheerfully put himself in another's place, going out of his way a bit if necessary.

However, a furlough extended just for fun—that is something. There had to be a first time for it in the Army where it isn't likely to establish a precedent. Other lads on furlough, inclined to pin down the evanescent rays of their shining hour, had better not try to cash in on Private Bletter's experience.

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—He was just an ordinary sailor, machinist's mate third class. I didn't even get his name, but in the brief conversation I did ask him what he planned to do when the war is over.
"Me?" he said slowly and got a little starry-eyed. "I'm gonna get me a farm and raise chickens and pigs and things."
This wouldn't be anything surprising except that he disclosed a few moments later that he had been born and reared in Brooklyn and had never been closer to farm land than what nearby Long Island had to offer.
The point is that he is typical of a million or so men in service that the Department of Agriculture and Congress are counting on giving a helping hand when they get back from up front.
There are a number of bills in Congress providing for readjusting the discharged service men to civil life, but one thing that is in almost every one of them and certain of passage in some form is provision for getting the would-be farmer off to a good start.
The prospective congressional provisions would (1) make direct loans to ex-service men who desire to buy farms; (2) provide for guaranteed mortgages, thus permitting banks and farm mortgage companies to make liberal loans; and (3) direct the Department of Agriculture to give all possible aid to these young farmers toward seeing that their efforts produce cash returns.
Since farm production is now being pushed to the limit, an expanded postwar program may seem like a pipe dream, but agriculture officials will tell you that isn't so. Apparently the "economy of scarcity" which resulted in bonuses for plowing under everything from pigs to cotton has been abandoned. The idea now is that it will take years of maximum production to feed a post-war world.
As for available land, the experts estimate that the Army and Navy now have 3,000,000 acres of good farm land which can be returned to farming as soon as the war is over. In addition, blue prints are being drawn for reclamation of additional millions of acres principally through irrigation, but some also through drainage and flood control.
The Department of Agriculture estimates that there are now a million farm youths in the armed services. While a large percentage will return to their family farms and an additional number will make use of their service training to turn to other pursuits, there still will be hundreds of thousands who will want their own farms. There's probably even a greater number of farmers who have gone into war industry and will want to return to farming as soon as the lush wartime wages begin to shrink.
No consideration has been given so far to these ex-war workers but many officials here think that some similar provision will be made as soon as the "G.I. Bill of Rights" or something like it has become a law.
Unless all present signs are pointing in the wrong direction, the would-be farmers in the armed services are going to be given the biggest break of any of the discharges.

Value of Potatoes in Dietary Science
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I SEE by the papers, as Mr. Dooley, the favorite columnist of the period of another war—the little, old Spanish-American War—used to say, I see by the papers
Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
that meat is going to be scarce and food restrictions are going to pinch in other directions, but we still are going to have plenty of Irish potatoes.
Well, it so happens that according to dietary science that is all right. Didn't the Irish live entirely and exclusively on the potato for a long time? Hush, child, don't ask me that—I don't know what the Irish did before they discovered America. But tradition says they did.
First as to the total nutritional value of the potato. How much energy do you get from it? An average medium-sized potato weighs half a pound. Potatoes furnish 310 calories a pound. So if you eat a potato cake at breakfast, a large potato at lunch, some potato soup and a small potato at dinner you will make up more than half the total daily's caloric requirement of the National Research Council for a person weighing 160 pounds. You may say this will get monotonous, but it keeps you from starvation and starvation gets monotonous, too.
Protein is the essential food ingredient. It is the building stone of nutrition. The potato contains about 2 1/2 per cent of protein. You require from 50 to 75 grams of protein a day. If you eat enough potato to furnish you 900 calories you will get about 30 grams of protein, or half your daily allowance, from the potato alone. There is more protein in the young, waxy potatoes—that is what makes them waxy. And there is nearly a third more protein in the skin of the potato than in the flesh. Also almost as much caloric value in the skin as in the flesh. So if your instinct tells you to like the skin, go to it.
The potato is 18 per cent starch which is what gives it its high caloric value. Fat is low—one-tenth of one per cent.
Now as to vitamins. Ah, those vitamins that some people think you can get only at the drugstore! Well, the potato is full of them. From time immemorial the potato has been known as one of the great scurvy preventives. That means it has Vitamin C. Sir Gilbert Blane, in his "Diseases of the Fleet," published in 1781, stated that scurvy never occurred when potatoes were plentiful in the diet. Modern chemistry finds the white potato to contain 15 milligrams of Vitamin C per 100 grams. You require 60 milligrams daily, which you get in about half a pound of potato.
Vitamin B—thiamine chloride

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A. C.—If the urine shows no sugar could there be sugar in the blood?
Answer: There is always sugar in the blood. If it gets above a certain level it generally spills over in the urine. Sometimes, however, but rarely, the kidney filter does not pass the excess and while there is excessive sugar in the blood there is none in the urine.
N. T. C.—Is electric vibration treatment for cataracts helpful?
Answer: Not only not helpful, but harmful. It takes up the precious time when real treatments could be beneficial.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO
Argus Steele was leaning against the bar in the Penguin Club sipping a scotch and soda when a tall, dark-haired girl entered. As she paused to look around he was reminded, for a fleeting second, of Syria Verne. He sighed and turned away. When Ellen arrived she found him staring into his glass.
"There are still a lot of things I want to know about the murder of Syria," said Ellen. "I haven't had a chance to talk to you all day, what with reporters and police and other people around."
Argus smiled. "Ask away, Red-head."
"How did you first come to suspect Roger Flagg?"
"There were several things: When I discovered that gun mounted in the air-conditioning machine and how it worked, I began to weed out possible suspects." He paused to sip his drink.
"Dancer had wanted Syria out of the way, he probably would've bumped her off in approved gangster fashion. Mabel and Dorry didn't strike me as being mechanically minded and I couldn't bring myself to believe that either one had hired some inventor to do the whole job."
"Well, how about Pierre?" Ellen asked.
"I discounted Sturgis all along because, if he were Redbeard, why should he go to the trouble of disguising himself when he never could completely disguise the one tell-tale thing about himself—namely, his limp? So it seemed to me that our murderer was purposely trying to throw suspicion on Sturgis by adopting a limp, along with the beard and glasses."
"I suppose you figured later that the fellow who was most apt to be jealous of Pierre would be likely to divert suspicion his way," Ellen suggested.
"Yes," said Argus, "and if Pierre had come up to the apartment with Syria and had answered the phone for her, it would have suited the murderer almost as well. So that narrowed my suspects down to the two: Carstairs and Roger Flagg who, incidentally, didn't realize that Carstairs, Sr. was financing Syria. All of his suspicions fell on poor Pierre, who had also lost out."
"Well," remarked Ellen. "I thought that Carstairs, Sr. had done it."
"I eliminated both of the Carstairs when I discovered the telephone tester's signal gag. Each had tried to phone Syria on Monday night. Would they have done that if either of them had set the machine and started the phone ringing?"
"I see what you mean," said Ellen. "So that just leaves Roger Flagg."
"Unless the crime had been committed by some one entirely unsuspected," the detective declared. "But when Grange discovered Redbeard's hideout on Third Ave-

Dead Men's Eyes Are Giving New Sight

By BONNIE WILEY
SAN FRANCISCO—A clearing house for corneas, San Francisco's unique Dawn society, is swept off its feet these days with about 1,000 letters a month from donors who want to pledge their eyes, after death, that the blind may see—and from the blind, themselves, groping toward a new-found ray of hope.
The Dawn society was organized in 1939 in the belief that sight could be restored to many of the blind if a successful corneal transplant operation could be performed.
The cornea is the transparent part of the eyeball coat over the iris and pupil which admits light to the interior. Through an intricate operation, corneas can be transplanted from one eye to another.
Sponsored by the Grand California Lodge of the International Order of Good Templars, the nonprofit society has one purpose—to secure pledges of eyes, after the death of donors, for eye surgeons and eye hospitals registered on its rolls. It also keeps a file of blind patients who might be benefited by operation.
"The corneal transplant will not restore sight in all cases," pointed out O. A. Springfield, the society treasurer. "There are about 200,000 blind in the nation who might be cured by the operation. We require an examination by an eye specialist before any blind applicant is admitted to our rolls."
Hundreds of pledges have been obtained. More are needed.
One letter came from a 14-year-old girl. "When I die I want my eyes to go to a blind person," she wrote.
She received a pledge card by return mail with the fervent wish that her pledge would not be carried out for a long, long time to come.

Top-and-Bottom Victory Gardening
By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association
THE VICTORY GARDEN should first be "planted" on paper. This means laying out a planting plan. Planning on paper means fewer mistakes. A plan enables one to so arrange the garden that all the area is occupied and producing during all of the growing season.
After planning the Victory garden on paper, the use of proper fertilizer and lots of "elbow grease" in preparing and cultivating the soil will result in amazing crops of vegetables from even a small plot of ground.
One very productive plan for the small Victory garden calls for "top-and-bottom" gardening. This method is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. "Top-and-bottom" gardening means following a root crop such as carrots with an above ground crop such as late cabbage. Early lettuce can be followed by a planting of beets. Extra-early peas, radishes and corn can be followed by turnips, carrots or beets. Early onions, beets and carrots can be followed by peppers, tomatoes and eggplants.
In planning the Victory garden on paper, and when ordering the seeds for it, the home canning negro should be given full consideration instead of merely relying upon canning any "surpluses" if any.

DAIRY HERD IS SOLD WHEN LABOR SCARCE

Beef Cattle To Be Put On Farm in Place of Cows

KANSAS CITY, April 6.—(AP)—One of the Midwest's largest and most famous dairy herds—born of a lumberman's concern over lack of good milk for an infant granddaughter—goes on the auction block today, a victim of labor shortage.

Longview Farms, now operated by Loula Long Combs, better known throughout the United States as a breeder and exhibitor of show horses, is disposing of its 758 fine grade dairy cattle and replacing them with 700 beef cattle which need less attention.

Military demands and higher-paying war plant jobs reduced the farm's personnel from a normal

175 to less than 100, Russell Park, general manager, said. "If we're to protect this $2,500,000 investment, there's nothing to do but sell all of the cows and dairy equipment," he commented. The Longview dairy herd was established in 1912 by the late R. A. Long, Mrs. Combs' father.

Almost 17,000 fewer persons were killed in traffic accidents in 1943 than in 1941.

$10,000 ASKED BY AUTO OWNER IN WRECK HERE

Owner of Truck That Hit Bank Front Facing Action Filed

Clarence Clark, of Middleport, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court, asks $10,000 damages from Horace L. Sewell, of Meigs County, doing business as Sewell Brothers, as result of injuries sustained at Fayette and Court Streets about 3 A. M. April 5, 1942, when defendant's truck crashed into plaintiff's auto which was being operated by his son, Clarence Clark, Jr.

In the accident mentioned, the defendant's truck, which was headed west on Court Street, struck the plaintiff's auto, which was headed north on Fayette Street, wrecking it, and the truck came to rest against the front of the Washington Savings Bank building, where the stone-work was badly marred by the impact, and other damage inflicted to the building.

The plaintiff, who is represented by Charles S. Hire, states that the defendant was driving at a greater speed than allowed by law, and was negligent and careless, and was sleepy and exhausted.

Plaintiff states that he was hurled against some metal parts of the car, rendered unconscious, and was permanently injured in the crash, all to his damage in the amount of $10,000 for which he asks judgement.

Easter Services Planned At All Churches Here

SUNRISE RITES AND CANTATAS ARE INCLUDED

Union Observance of Good Friday To Be Held by Churches in City

Washington C. H. and Fayette County churches have been holding special services throughout the Lenten season, but with the approach of Easter, these worship periods take on special significance.

Sunrise services, Good Friday worship periods, cantatas and especially planned Easter Sunday church services are in store for the rest of the week. Washington C. H. churches unite for Good Friday services.

First Baptist Church
A sunrise service at 7 A. M. will begin Easter Sunday services at the First Baptist Church. Rev. Harold B. Twining, pastor of the church, announced.

Sponsored by the young people of the church, Miss Geraldine Smith, president of the Youth Fellowship, will preside, read the Scripture, give a devotional meditation and offer prayer. Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood, pianist, will play as the prelude, "Sunrise," by De Leone, and the postlude, "Recessional," by Sullivan.

Miss Betty Robinson will tell an Easter story, "Rebekah's Lily," and Miss Clara Belle Robinson will read "Easter Poem." Robert Browning is to sing "The Holy City," and Miss Mary Jane Townsley and Miss Lorie Merritt will give a duet, "Fairer Lord Jesus."

Climax of the service will be a recognition and memorial service for men and women of the church in the service. Red, white and blue candles will be lighted for those in this country, overseas and the one represented by a gold star. A carnation will be presented to the mothers and wives present of each service name called.

Miss Mary Evelyn Twining will conclude the service, singing "A Prayer for the Boys Over There." The traditional Easter breakfast is to be served at 8 A. M. in the lecture room of the church. The breakfast, served at cost, is prepared and served by a committee of the Shepherd's Bible Class, headed by Mrs. Harold B. Twining.

The choir, directed by Miss Mary Jane Townsley, will give three anthems at the morning worship service beginning at 10:30 A. M. The anthems are "Over the Hills," "He Is Risen" and "He Lives Forever More."

Two flags, an American flag presented by the Shepherd's Bible Class, and a Christian flag, the gift of Mrs. L. C. Coffman, will be presented in honor of servicemen and women and dedicated by the pastor during the service.

Rev. Twining has chosen for his Easter sermon, "Taking the 'I' Out of the Resurrection." Bible school will meet as usual at 9:15 A. M. There will be no evening service.

First Presbyterian Church
The First Presbyterian Church choir will give a sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," Friday at 7:30 P. M. The service, modeled after a similar worship last year, will be culminated with communion.

The cantata, described briefly in the sub-title, "A sacred cantata recalling some of the incidents in the last days of the Saviour's life on earth," is the story in choral music of the high points of Christ's last week on earth.

Directed by Mrs. Rankin Paul, the choir has adapted the cantata to cut the length of the program without sacrificing the thread of the musical story. Representatives of other choirs will take part in the cantata as well.

Soloists are Miss Marian Osborn, soprano; Miss Rosemary Burgett, alto; Rev. John K. Abernethy, tenor, and Richard Rankin, basso. The organ accompaniment will be played by Mrs. Ralph Gage.

Easter Sunday services will include baptism and reception of members at the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. Abernethy's sermon subject is to be "The Way of the Risen Lord."

Two anthems, "O Morn of Beauty" and "In the End of the Sabbath" will be sung by the choir, with Miss Rosemary Burgett as soloist.

This will be at the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Betty Cook is to preside over the service. Miss Beverly Long will give the call to worship. Miss Janice Hughey will lead in prayer and Miss Long will give a scripture reading.

Miss Jane Landrum is to sing "The Holy City" and Miss Rebecca Coffey will give a meditation, "The Resurrection." Rev. Parkin will give the offertory prayer and Miss Joan Kellough will sing another solo. A meditation, "Easter in Wartime" is to be given by Miss Minshall and Rev. John K. Abernethy will pronounce the benediction and offer the closing prayer.

Grace Methodist Church
Communion services at Grace Methodist Church will be Thursday at 7:30 P. M. The choir will sing "God So Loved the World" at this service.

"Easter in Wartime" is Rev. George B. Parkin's sermon theme for the Easter morning worship. An anthem, "Lo, the Tomb Is Empty" will be sung by the choir.

North Street Church of Christ
"He Died; He Arose; He Ascended; He Lives," is the theme of the sunrise service at the North Street Church of Christ. Mrs. Ben Norris is to be the narrator, Alfred Weatherly the reader, and Miss Marjorie Swartz soloist, for "The Old Rugged Cross." "Christ Is Risen, Hallelujah," "Golden Harps Are Sounding," and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The service is to be at 5:45 A. M. Rev. R. Byron Carver's sermon theme for the morning worship service is "The Joys of Heavenly Harvest." "Christ Is Heaven," is the anthem chosen by the choir for the morning service.

At 7:30 P. M. Easter Sunday, the choir of the church, directed by Miss Christine Switzer, will give an Easter cantata, "Hosanna," by Nolte. Soloists are Lyle Sowders, Marjorie Swartz, Phyllis Thornhill, Betty Johnson, Marcia Highley, Christine Switzer, Mary Jane Hyer and Patty Cabbage. Mrs. R. B. Carver is the organist.

St. Colman's Church
On Holy Thursday the anniversary of the institution of the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist and the holy sacrifice of the mass will be observed. High mass will be celebrated at 7:15 A. M. After mass the sacrament will be carried in procession to the altar of repose where it will be reserved for the adoration of the faithful throughout the day. Thursday evening, holy hours will be observed from 7:30 to 8:30 P. M.

The mass of the pre-sanctified will be sung at 7:15 A. M. on Good Friday. At 2:30 P. M. the devotion of the way of the cross will begin with the choir chanting of the hymn, "Stabat Mater." The way of the cross devotion, followed by the reading of the passion of Christ, will start at 7:30 P. M. Friday.

Holy Saturday services will start at 7:00 A. M. with the blessing of the new fire, symbolizing "Christ, the Light of the World," followed by blessings of the Pascal Candle, the baptismal water and the reading of the prophecies. Mass of the day will be at 8:30 A. M. Confessions will be heard from 3 to 5 P. M. and from 7 to 9 P. M.

St. Colman Junior Choir will sing the accompaniment to the high mass at 7:30 A. M. Easter Sunday. The high mass will be followed by benediction of the sacrament. Low mass at 9:30 A. M. will conclude services for the day.

South Side Church of Christ
Rev. Edward J. Cain's sermon subject Easter morning at the regular worship hour will be "The Resurrection of Christ," dealing with the proof and results of the resurrection. A quartette will sing "Hail to Easter King." "He Lives" will be given in duet form.

A program by the primary and junior departments of the church will take the place of the regular Sunday night worship. Besides songs and recitations, a pageant, "The Cross of Christ," narrated by Mrs. India Hooks, is to be given.

Mary Troute, Helen Yarger, LaVonne Creamer, Ruth McKay, Marjorie Bellar, Peggy Cline and Clara Belle Blades will take part in the pageant, given in costume. The music will be sung by the adult chorus with Mrs. Calvin Johnson at the organ.

White Oak Church
Mrs. Joseph Palmer and Robert Case are directing a children's day program at the White Oak Church Easter Sunday. Rev. C. P. Taylor, pastor, will speak on the topic "Glad Tidings of the Resurrection."

Jeffersonville Methodist
Young people of the Jeffersonville Methodist Church will be in charge of the sunrise service at 6:45 A. M. Easter Sunday. Caroline Smith will be the unseen trumpeter at the beginning of the service. Ruth Elinor Wiseman is to play the prelude. Scriptures will be given by Norma Jean Wilt, Keith Zimmirmen and Rev. E. R. Rector, pastor of the church.

"The Resurrection and the Christian Hope" is the subject Caroline Smith has chosen for her talk. Marvin DeMent is to sing "The Holy City." A fellowship breakfast will be served after the service.

At the morning worship at 10:45 A. M., Rev. Rector's sermon theme will be "As It Began To Dawn." Baptism and reception of members will be a part of the service, which also includes special music by the choir and a prelude played by Ruth Elinor Wiseman.

A candlelight communion service is to be held Thursday at 8 P. M. Rev. Rector said.

Bloomington Methodist
Services have been held at 7:30 nightly since Palm Sunday at the Bloomington Methodist Church and will continue until Easter Sunday. Rev. J. Herman Baughn, pastor, said.

A special Good Friday service will begin at 1:30 P. M. Both Bloomington and Staunton Churches will have baptismal services and receive members into the church on Easter Sunday at 9:30 and 11 A. M., respectively. A sunrise service is to be at 6 A. M. Sunday.

Eight were baptized and 23

WHS Band Concert To Be Given Wednesday Night

VARIED PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN IN FULL UNIFORM

Proceeds To Be Used for Buying Uniforms and New Instruments

The Washington C. H. High School concert band today is putting the finishing touches on the program for its annual concert which is to be given in the WHS auditorium next Wednesday evening.

Under the direction of Paul Fitzwater, the school music director, the band has been rehearsing for weeks, mostly in after-school hours, both as a whole and by sections during study periods.

The program, although not announced in detail, will consist of arrangements of classic numbers balanced with compositions by the best known contemporary writers. It also will include solos, quartet renditions and specialties. Among the feature numbers will be a trombone solo, "Stupendo," by John Craig, a senior, and a unique saxophone arrangement of "My Old Kentucky Home" by Joe Cullen, Eleanor Van Sickle, Martha Lou Bennett and Richard Babb. The specialties are to be given with the band accompaniment, however.

The concert is to be presented in full dress band uniform from a raised circular platform on the auditorium stage.

Proceeds from the concert are to be used for the purchase of the blue and white band uniforms and instruments. Fitzwater explained that while many students own their own instruments, the school furnishes all of the uniforms and the larger and more expensive instruments. The band, he added, raises its own money for all expenses and does not receive appropriations from the general school operating fund.

Band members themselves have the tickets for sale and the reserve seat plat is at Patton's Book Store.

THREE LOCAL BOYS IN U. S. NAVAL CHOIR

Will Broadcast Three Times During Easter Period

As a tribute to the excellent voices of three Washington C. H. boys who are now undergoing training at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, the three have not only been made members of the big choir organized there, but have been asked to sing in three broadcasts within the next few days.

These boys are Wendell Whiteside, Donald Riber and Robert Todhunter.

Their first broadcast of Easter songs is on the "Meet Your Navy" hour, Friday evening, over the Blue Network; the second appearance of the choir is Sunday at 7 A. M. over the Blue Network, and the third appearance will be Sunday night at 10:05, over the Columbia Network.

The three youths have been chosen from among the thousands of men in training in the camp.

Bowel Cleaning Power Of Erb-Help Medicine
One man recently took ERB-HELP three days and said afterward that he never would have believed his body contained so much filthy substance. He says his stomach, intestines, bowels and whole system were so thoroughly cleansed that his constant headaches came to an end, several pimply skin eruptions on his face dried up overnight, and even the rheumatic pains in his knee disappeared. At present he is an altogether different man, feeling fine in every way.

FREE GARDENING BOOKLET AVAILABLE

Barnhart Oil Company Gives Seeds, Pamphlets

New techniques in victory gardening are available to Washingtonians at the Barnhart Oil Co., corner of Market and North Streets here.

A 24-page free booklet issued by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, plus a package of super-giant zinnia seeds are there for the asking.

Important, but relatively unfamiliar methods of increasing crop yields to levels believed impossible by most gardeners, are covered in the book, which is designed both to assure the novice a successful garden and to introduce new improvements to the veteran.

Succession planting which makes possible two harvests in one season, and companion cropping which accomplishes virtually the same objective, are described in the book. The Firestone publication also declares that gardeners can grow "30 to 50 per cent more vegetables by hand fertilizing," which is the placing of plant food in furrows running alongside the row in which seeds are planted.

Methods of ripening tomatoes and other crops far ahead of the regular season are given in the book. There are complete plans for gardens of various sizes, tables showing how to combat all plant diseases and insects, directions for transplanting, cultivating, selecting a proper site for vegetable-growing and for all other phases of gardening.

His display of calmness and quick thinking, coupled with a disregard for his own life, prevented severe injury and possible death and reflected creditably on himself and his organizations.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, April 6—(P)—Prisoner of the Nazis for an hour was Private Lawrence D. Kendle of Canton, Ohio, who was captured by the Germans at the Fifth Army's Anzio-Nettuno beachhead and released an hour later. "I guess I was too little, or they already had their limit," said Private Kendle, a medical aid man.

Early one evening he was trying to make contact with his Third Infantry Division company, when a voice hailed him in perfect English: "Hey, Buddy, come here!"

Kendle paused to face a German soldier armed with a machine pistol which was pointed at him. Led by his captor through the darkness to a depression in the ground, Kendle found two other enemy soldiers suffering from wounds. Using supplies from his kit-bags, the Ohio medic bound their wounds. Then he waited, anticipating prison camp or even execution.

"Report back to your outfit!" ordered his Nazi captor. Kendle obeyed—rapidly.

'Little Brown Jug' Gets Recognition At Last As One Of Greatest Pacers

"A wonderful name, for a wonderful horse, for a wonderful stake, for a wonderful drink, from a Little Brown Jug."

Thus, did Frank DeWitt offer a toast to the namesake of the new harness racing classic for three-year-old pacers.

Whether the sponsors of the "Little Brown Jug" stake, to be raced at Delaware for the first time this season, realize fully the romantic and traditional background of the name selected by their committee for the classic, DeWitt thinks is doubtful. He merely said "no more appropriate name could have been chosen."

Then he pulled away the cobwebs of time and blew off the dust of the past and told an amazing story.

From the store of memories he had accumulated during the years, he picked up the threads of one of the most absorbing dramas of the sport of harness racing. These he wove into the colorful word picture with facts painstakingly gleaned from the yellowed pages of the records.

When a young man DeWitt owned and raced harness horses while living on a farm south of Washington C. H. It was a sport he loved, and although in later life he had to forego active participation in it, he never lost his interest. His memories have not been dimmed by the years and there is nothing he likes better than to reminisce for hours. Horsemen here agree that his horse lore is remarkable and just about as accurate as the written records.

As a preface to his story of Little Brown Jug, DeWitt recalled that back in the 1850's a Major Kittrell of Taylorsville, Tenn., went to Kentucky and bought a roan stallion that was a natural pacer; that this horse became known as Kittrell's Hal and, he added, "this stallion is the fountain head from which have come nearly all of the celebrated pacers of Tennessee."

Describing Kittrell's Hal, he said he was a horse about 15 1/2 hands high, heavy muscled and in the exhibitions of speed which he gave under the saddle at fairs and other horse shows proved him a fast natural pacer, although he was never handled for speed. The facts concerning his breeding, he continued, are so few and unsatisfactory as to make any statement concerning it doubtful.

Carrying on the story, DeWitt said that in 1862, a half-thoroughbred mare named Betsy Baker was bred to Kittrell's Hal, the get being a colt variously known as Gibson's Tom Hal, Old Tom Hal or Tom Hal Junior. But to the layman, he was, and still is, known merely as Tom Hal. This potent sire, he recalled, spent most of his time before the plow or log wagon, but he added, "be that as it may, he is the true fountain head of that illustrious family of pacers known as 'The Hal Family.' And, the first of his get, he pointed out significantly, to attract the attention of the country was Little Brown Jug—and this is the story of him related by Frank DeWitt:

Little Brown Jug

In 1874, O. N. Fry, of Mooreville, Tenn., was the owner of Tom Hal. He made the season with him at $5, by the insurance, and if, when the colt was old enough to wean, it did not show the saddle gait no fee was to be charged. A neighbor of Mr. Fry then owned a mare named Lizzie, by John Netherlands, a pacing-bred horse. Mr. Fry happened to meet the owner of Lizzie one day and suggested to him the advisability of breeding Lizzie to Tom Hal. But the owner of Lizzie demurred, saying he could raise a mule, and that when the mule was a year old he could sell it for $50, which was much better than he could do raising colts. Finally, Mr. Fry proposed that if he would breed to Tom Hal he would pay him $50 for the foal when it was a year old, if sound and all right. This proposition was accepted and one day the next year the mare appeared at Mr. Fry's place leading a colt so thin that he would hardly make a shadow and in addition to apparently being half-starved, he was covered with lice, which had eaten his mane and tail and nearly finished what little vitality was in his body. This colt was Little Brown Jug, which this man had brought to Mr. Fry pursuant to their contract, as he claimed, and demanded the $50.

When Mr. Fry saw the colt he refused to receive him, and told the man he did not want such a looking colt on the place. The man said he had no money and had relied upon the promised $50 to buy necessities for his family, and finally Mr. Fry, out of sympathy, but under protest, took the colt and paid the $50. After a thorough cleaning the colt was given plenty to eat and improved very rapidly.

The next year Mr. Fry leased a portion of his farm to a colored man to work on shares. He had no horse, and in the spring that Little Brown Jug was two years old he was sold by Mr. Fry to this colored man for $75. The colored man broke him to harness, and used him to plow the land and put in his crops and in addition to this work, every Sunday his wife and two children would get upon the back of the colt and ride him several miles to church. Beside all this, the colored man's son had a sweetheart who lived two or three miles from his home, and he would take this colt, after having worked him all day and go across the fields to the home of his sweetheart, hitch him to the fence, where he would stand until the early hours of the morning and then do a full day's work the next day.

When fall came the colt was again in a pitiable condition. But the wife of the colored man was taken ill, and, after attending her for some time, the doctor refused to attend her further unless Mr. Fry would become responsible for the bill. He did, and the doctor attended her until she died. The doctor's bill was $60 and the colt again came into the possession of Mr. Fry as a payment for the $60 doctor bill.

The colt was then turned out and with rest and plenty of feed soon commenced to improve. In the summer and fall of 1878, when the colt was three years old, Mr. Fry—being a small man—rode him to the colt shows and fairs and soon discovered that he could pace fast. The next year he placed him in the hands of a trainer who trained on a half mile track near Lewisburg, Tenn. The rapidity with which he improved was astonishing. In a few weeks that half starved and much abused colt became one of the speediest horses which up to that time had ever been seen in harness.

DeWitt said the late premier trainer and driver, Ed Geers, told him in Columbus, Ohio, at a Grand Circuit meeting, that in the spring of 1879 he had driven Little Brown Jug in Nashville, Tenn., and although he was neither his trainer nor driver, he considered him the strongest, easiest-going pacer he had ever seen. He said he told him, too, that Little Brown Jug had better than two minute speed any part of a mile. "Truly a wonder horse," he declared.

His conformation was the most remarkable of any horse ever seen on the turf. He was scarcely 15 1/2 hands high, a rich brown in color, his slim neck, small ears, large expressive eyes, and finely-molded head, clearly showed the thoroughbred blood which he had inherited; but the most remarkable thing about him was his abnormal muscular development. His forelegs were large, flat and well tapered, and his hind quarters were so immense as to make him look like a deformity.

What he was as a race horse, we know, but what he might have been had he received the care and attention in his early career bestowed upon promising race horses in modern times, is a matter of conjecture. Many people still say and believe him to have possessed of as much, if not more, natural speed than any horse that ever lived.

Little Brown Jug, 2:11 3/4, received his record at Hartford, Conn., on Aug. 21, 1881, hitched to a high-wheeled sulky, without any protection whatever but the harness. Considered from a point of time—both in date and of performance—he was surely a wonderful horse!

The sports outlook at Washington C. H. High School was considerably brighter after the track meeting Wednesday afternoon and the elimination scraps for the boxing tournament in the evening, but the new draft status of Coach Jerry Kissell cast a shadow on the future.

Kissell received his "greeting" card reclassifying him 1-A for selective service while he and Coach George Miraben were in the midst of making plans for spring activities.

He is scheduled to go for his pre-induction examination Monday with the group going from here. The Draft Board declined to say how many were scheduled to go, but it is known that more than a few have received reclassification cards.

Kissell, grinning broadly, said he could see no reason why he could not pass the physical tests. He said he had passed both physical and mental examinations for enlistment in a naval officer training course but had not yet received his call for that and he added he did not know whether he would hear from it before he was called for induction. However, he said he did not expect to be in a position to continue his coaching post here next year, but he expressed the hope that he could remain long enough to finish out this school year's athletic program. Kissell is still classed 4-F because of digestive disorders.

Prospects for a track team this spring were described as better than had been expected by Kissell and Miraben. About two score

COACH KISSELL IN 1-A AS SPRING SPORTS AT WHS GET UNDER WAY

The sports outlook at Washington C. H. High School was considerably brighter after the track meeting Wednesday afternoon and the elimination scraps for the boxing tournament in the evening, but the new draft status of Coach Jerry Kissell cast a shadow on the future.

convey such tragic news," says Col. George F. Herbert, head of the Casualty Branch. "We do not write 'form' letters here. It is difficult at best to accept news of the death of a dear one. The information is relayed humanely and gently."

Coupled with the letters from relatives at home are those bravely written notes which assert that if "he had to go, we are glad he gave his life for his country."

A Braddock, Pa., wife of a soldier killed in action penned: "When your beautiful letter reached me words cannot describe how I felt. Yes, I was crushed by the death of my dear husband. But when I learned he won the Purple Heart I took his picture in my hands and said, 'You thought that stripes would make me love you more, but I always told you I knew you were doing your best—and that is what counted.'"

A pastor from Rockford, Ill., wrote: "We earnestly thank you for your kind letters in connection with the death of our son. We are deeply touched by the way you personalize your messages in these tragic days when you must be under terrific pressure."

Similar sentiments were expressed by a wife in Oklahoma City: "By now the shock of news of my husband's death has worn away to where I can think somewhat more clearly. You have been extremely kind and tactful in handling a very ticklish situation. I had no idea anything as cold and technical as the government could take time to be personal and sympathetic."

Such letters bring tears to the eyes of those in the Casualty Branch, and even Colonel Herbert, an army man of the old school, sometimes speaks gruffly and must clear his throat.

"Wonderful letters; real American people," he says. "But we get a few that aren't so nice. Some criticize us for not giving in more detail the conditions under which their boy had died. We can't help that. We do what we can."

"Yes, and a few cold-hearted individuals write us to ask 'How soon do we get the insurance?'"

"Thank God, there are few of them."

THE PLANT APPARENTLY WAS SUFFERED AT GLENVIL, A VILLAGE OF 285 POPULATION ON THE PLANT OUTSKIRTS. NIGHT MARSHAL WERT BRUNS SAID BUSINESS HOUSES THERE WERE "PRACTICALLY COLLAPSED."

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Decker of Glenvil said they were awakened by a small explosion and that when they went to the window a second and more intense blast knocked them to their feet. They were cut by flying glass and brought to Hastings for treatment.

ANNUAL PICNIC PLANNED BY CHERRY HILL

P-TA Sponsors Get-together
At End of School Year
In Late May

Cherry Hill P-T. A. is making plans now for its annual picnic. No definite date for the gathering—to be held at the latter part of May—is set, but it probably will be held much as previous picnics—with P-T. A. members and all Cherry Hill school children bringing their own dinner and meeting on Cherry Hill for the meal.

Candidate School and upon completion of the course was commissioned a second lieutenant at Ft. Belvoir, Va., in January of 1943. Since then his advancement has been rapid.

With a background of a pre-engineering college course and six years of practical experience with the state Highway Department, Maj. Steen has been with the army engineer corps almost since he first donned his uniform.

His parents said they had not heard from their son since receiving his APO number and did not know of his promotion. His father, proprietor of the Steen Dry Goods Co., said that he was still hoping for his captivity when he wrote his last letter home and that his promotion to major was a surprise.

He was married to Miss Martha Belle Keller, July 5, 1941, whom he had known since his boyhood days in Jacksonville, Ill., where his father was in business before coming to Washington C. H. Mrs. Steen is now living with her parents in Jacksonville, but is expected to come here next summer for an extended visit.

Maj. Steen had been at Ft. Pierce, Fla., for three months before he was transferred more recently to a camp (name military secret) nearer one of the ports of embarkation on the Atlantic coast. Previous to that he had been at Camp White, Ore., and Ft. Lewis, Wash., where he was assistant division engineer. His parents said they "presumed" he was now overseas with his outfit and were eagerly awaiting word from him to tell them where he is now located.

Safety pins were first devised by Walter Hunt in 1849.
